

Individuals needed for an anonymous research internet survey developed by Boston University Center for Psychiatric Rehabilitation

The Center for Psychiatric Rehabilitation at Boston University is recruiting participants for an anonymous research survey about professional practices that can promote vocational recovery

Who can participate?

- 1) adults;
- 2) individuals with significant psychiatric disabilities;
- 3) individuals who are currently working or who aspire to work;
- 4) individuals who have received mental health and or employment related services.

What does it involve?

- You will complete an anonymous internet survey
- In this survey, you will assess the importance of a number of providers' competencies and attitudes to your vocational recovery

What are the benefits of participating in the research study?

- The study will inform the mental health field about the specific strategies, attitudes, and relationship factors that may contribute to the work success of people with mental health issues. In a second phase, a tool to assess these competencies will be developed.

Other information about the study

- Your participation in the survey is completely voluntary
- No personal information will be collected
